1. At-a-glance comparison

Metric (Jan–Apr '26 closed window)	Retro Revival	VAIO (Vintage all in one)	Vintage Vault (handle: vintage-vault)
Lifetime orders	248	960	2,227
Lifetime unique buyers	180	839	1,435
Lifetime GMV (£)	51,335	192,133	646,653
On platform since	Jul 2025	May 2025	Jan 2024
Persona	PK – Longtail	PK – Longtail	PK – Non Zone
Orders (Jan–Apr)	145	513	258
GMV Jan–Apr (£)	23,838	106,010	54,127
QC hold rate Jan–Apr	27.0 %	45.3 %	6.5 %
Cancel rate Jan–Apr	10.3 %	13.4 %	6.2 %
Refund as % of GMV	13.5 %	17.0 %	9.0 %
Net direction (Apr→May vs Jan→Mar)	Growing	Scaling	Declining

Headline read — none of these three has 5th Era Thrift's quality profile. Retro Revival and VAIO are growing supplier-acquisition channels but with serious operational drag; Vintage Vault is a veteran whose volume has fallen 85 % from its October peak.

Take

- Growth profile: clearly scaling — orders went from 2 (Dec) to 56 (May), buyers from 2 to 52, repeat-to-seller cohort tripled.
- Quality concern: QC hold rate 22–35 % across the entire window, and the Apr refund spike (£2,300, 30 % of GMV) is a red flag — investigate the underlying cause.
- Acquisition value: modest. ~6–12 new-to-Fleek buyers/month — useful but not a flagship channel.
- Action: Not a candidate for fast-track exemption on current data. Worth a QC-reasons walkthrough with the supplier — the persistent grading-issue tickets suggest a listings-vs-physical mismatch.

Mar '26	91	55	30	10
Apr '26	154	111	48	6
May '26	125	77	37	15

Take

- Acquisition powerhouse: acquired 398 brand-new Fleek customers in Jan–Apr alone — by far the strongest new-buyer pipeline of the three sellers (and 7× more than 5th Era Thrift's same window).
- Operational drag is serious: QC hold rate 45 % Jan–Apr (essentially every other order goes to hold), cancellations spiked in Feb (35), and Feb refunds hit £9.9k.
- GMV per order is small (~£200) — high-velocity, low-value items.
- Repeat-to-seller still weak (6–15/month). Buyers are coming in via this seller but not coming back to them, suggesting either a listings-vs-reality gap or a one-shot purchase pattern.
- Action: strategic priority — clean up QC at supplier source. Pair with KAM intervention on listing accuracy; the acquisition value is too large to lose, but the defect rate is unsustainable.

4. Vintage Vault — vintage-vault

May '26		28	7	12

Take

- The largest seller of the three but in steep decline. Orders fell from 269 in Oct '25 → 30 in Apr '26 (–89 %), GMV from £66.7k → £8.6k.
- Quality has actually improved during the decline: QC hold rate dropped from 12 % (Oct) to ~3–7 % (Jan–Apr); PQ refunds dropped to £0 by April. Suggests the seller may have pulled back on volume to fix quality issues — or has been throttled by something.

- Repeat-buyer base is the strongest of the three (10–63 repeats/month) — they have a real loyal customer pool of ~1,400 lifetime buyers.
- New-to-Fleek acquisition is collapsing — from 95 in Oct to 7 in May. Whatever changed needs investigation before more value is lost.
- Action: schedule a diagnostic conversation with the supplier. Is this a self-imposed slowdown (capacity/quality fix)? A category-mix change? Or are they preparing to leave? At this lifetime value (£646k) and buyer asset (1,435 customers), this is a top-tier retention priority. The shop-name discrepancy ("Thrift Arena") is also worth clarifying.

5. Cross-supplier summary — where each one stands

Supplier	What they are	Where they're going	Quality risk	Acquisition value	Recommended action
Retro Revival	Mid-stage growth seller	Up — orders & buyers rising	High QC hold rate (~25 %), Apr refund spike	Modest (6–12 new-to-Fleek/mo)	Coach on listings/QC; review again in 30 days
VAIO	Scale acquisition engine	Up — but with operational chaos	Very high QC hold rate (~45 %); Feb cancellations spiked	Top of the list — 398 new-to-Fleek buyers in Jan–Apr	KAM-led QC remediation; preserve acquisition pipeline
Vintage Vault	Mature high-LTV seller	Down sharply (–89 % order vol)	Improving (down to 3–7 % hold rate)	Strong loyalty pool (1,435 lifetime buyers)	Diagnostic call now — this is the most-at-risk supplier of the three by absolute GMV exposure
(Reference) 5th Era Thrift	Best-in-class quality supplier	Down — declining since QC tightening	Lowest of any PK thrift seller (0.45 % hold, 0 % PQ)	Solid (~19/mo new to Fleek in Jan–Mar)	Performance-tier fast-track — see separate brief

Data caveats

- May 2026 figures are partial through 31 May. May "Delivered" lines are low because most May orders are still in transit.
- `vintage-vault` (vendor_id 1593) currently shows shop name "Thrift Arena" in the master record; the handle is unchanged. Worth confirming with KAM whether this is a planned rebrand.
- Peer benchmark for QC/PQ/cancel rates uses `fleek_hub.cx_dashboard_base` and `fleek_hub.order_line_details`.
